Lilbourne is a small but thriving community in which the small size brings great social cohesion. As one resident put it recently "we have to get on with each other. We're too small to be falling out!"

The village has a strong community feel to it, even without any shop, pub or school. The community mini-bus is so successful that it has even featured in a government White paper!

Modern transport has adversely affected the village with the M1 and the A5 being particularly intrusive. Current plans to put a Railway line through the village are being vigorously defended.
